Mr. Neumann Scores a Newspaper's Impropriety.

Deprecates Drawing the Color Line

SIXTH DAY.

The Commission entered the courtroom at 9:35 o'clock. Minutes of previous day's session were read. Reading of the evidence was waived by consent.

Paul Neumann then stated that the prisoners would offer no evidence for the defense, but in conformity to the rules in Courts-martial they would offer a statement. Out of deference to the wishes of one of the local journals he would not consume much time.

Col. Whiting wished to know, to avoid any misunderstanding, whether Mr. Neumann would file the statement after address by both counsel and the Judge Advocate.

Mr. Neumann stated that that was his understanding of the rule. He reminded the Commission that a argument. He called attention to which had said that counsel was pression of indignation regarding the making of bombs, if legitimately. used. These are always used in warfare. The use of bombs is not inhumane. If the Commission took the case carefully under considerasufficient evidence to convict Gulick of the charge of treason. Even if it was true that he did draw up the constitution to be proclaimed and other things, that would not constitute a crime. Under such men as General Nowlein and Colonel Bertelmann an easy victory was anticipated, hence the picking of men for the kingdom or the "kingdom come." Assuming that everything is true counsel would say that it was a reflection on a man's sanity. There was no council held and no concerted plan council held and no concerted plan was adopted. No sane white man would adopt such a plan as General Newlein and the other military officers had proposed. A promise of a "whole skin" would make a man say things he would not think of saying. It showed the valor of the Hawaiian, the leader of the rebel-lion. Counsel believed that Genget scot-free if be was to make himself useful to the authorities. Counsel wished to praise the Judge Advocate for his fairness of justice. He had been very kind both officially and otherwise. Counsel anticipated what the Judge Advocate would have to say in his argument. It was the "man with the white skin" he was after, and he would say the Hawaiian was misguided. The Hawaiian, it will be remembered, had his will fettered. There were plenty of people in the United States who think that a re public is a nonentity, a sham and a crazy idea. It is the same here. That the Hawaiian has been impelled to this by the coercion of white men in these islands is not true. Counsel would ask the Court why any white man should be wrong if he thought the country had been taken unlawfully away from the natives, as long as he did not come out in open rebellion. He denounced the invoking of any desire of vengeance on the prisoners because they are white men. He hoped there would be no prejudice in regard to color. Counsel had heard and knew that the right of revolution exists in Hawaii, but woe to the men if unsuccessful. Such are culpable regardless of color. Counsel would like to make an appeal on behalf of Major Seward, who made such a gallaut record in the war of the rebel-lion in the United States, but he would refrain from doing so. He could not refrain, however, from making an appeal for Gulick. The only evidence against him was that of Nowlein. He was well known and respected in this community, whose conduct was open and above board, risked his life with Alfred Castle, T. R. Walker, Geo. Dole and others, on behalf of the Government. During the Queen Emma riot, when things were very dark, Gulick was leader and assisted in restoring order. The record of this prisoner should have some weight against the evidence of a man like General Nowlein. No case has been made of treason against Gulick, and the Commission has no right to convict him of this charge. The following statement was then read bp Judge Advocate Kinney: Statement of Charles T. Gulick.

"For the last four months and more, I have been under the doctor's care (most of the time confined to my house), so that whoever desired to see me, whether on business or otherwise, called at my house on King street. Many called—W. A Kinney, A. W. Carter, F. Wilhelm and others on business, as well as Mr. Rickard, Mr. Nowlein and Major Queen, making conveyances, etc., negotiating (amongst other items of business), the transfer of the McKibbin lease to the Queen. Nowlein was the medium of communication between the Queen and myself, and was frequently at my house on busi-ness for her account. Mr. Rickard prevent it.

PLEA FOR GULICK. and Major Seward came to my house frequently as friends and I arranged certain financial matters with Rickard in the interests of the several agencies which bave been in my hands for some time past.

"For my own part (during the time named in the charge) my financial and physical condition has taken the whole of my attention, and since the 30th of June, 1887, I have abstained from dabbling in politics. Local disturbances I have learned of in common with the general public by current rumors and thoulgh the local press up to the time of my

"Since being brought before this Court (if the testimony and confes-sion before the Court are to be relied on), I am learning a great deal with regard to current affairs of which I never dreamed, much less had a hand in.

"The meetings at my house at which plans, constitution, commis-sions, martial law, orders and the like, are said to have been discussed, never took place. "All these persons called at my house, but at no time was there a meeting in which any plans, designs, or schemes were broached or talked about in the presence of Major Seward, or at any time. The restoration of the monarchy was talked about between Rickard and Nowlein. I participated in the conversation, but no scheme or plan involving armed rebellion was concluded upon or adopted. "The outbreak of the revolution was as much a surprise to me as to any stranger. I had neither a knowledge of it nor any expectation that it would take place, and certainly never agreed to take part in it, either as leader or otherwise. Whatever plans may have been discussed between us were never accepted by reminded the Commission that a us, or any of us, in the others' pres-statement was not made under cath. ence. The constitution and pro-Mr. Neumann then continued his clamation were written by regument. He called attention to me at Nowlein's request, the the comments of a local journal, former being partly in writing and partly in printed slips. I never had procrastinating, and he considered the criticism one of questionable taste. He thought the Court should taste notice of this matter. Counsel approached, or talked to about it by that connection it was used without my knowledge or consent. When the matter was stated in Court on the 22d of Jan., 1895, it was the first information I had of it. "C. T. Gulick."

Address of Kinney

Judge Advocate W. A. Kinney then addressed the Commission. was not the legitimate use of the bombs that the Judge Advocate would speak against. An armed cruiser with filibusters could come off port and storm the town with cannons. It is said that a revolution is justifiable if successful, but he would hold that a revolution is not justifiable when successful unless he government to be established was a better government. He did not believe that any of the prisoners could make any statement of any grievance against the Republic. Gulick has admitted that he wrote the constitution and proclamation, and that was sufficient to convict duty if it convicted the native in the field and allowed the wire-puller to guns had Bipikane's initials—"J. W. them you get an inferior scot free. They must seek far and near and find the source. With regard to the position of Nowlein, the Judge Advocate would say that it was no better than that of any of the prisoners. The Judge Advocate reviewed the evidence against the prisoners and before closing stated to the Commission that he hoped he would be excused if he had passed over any point in the case. He asked for a conviction.

Court was cleared at 11:20 o'clock until 1:30 p. m.

The Judge Advocate objected to Antone Rosa appearing as counsel, as on December 20, the day before the steamer Waimanalo sailed for the arms, the ex-Queen had signed a commission for Mr. Rosa as Associate Justice. He thought that the commission was signed with the knowledge of Mr. Rosa. Although he was not arrested, it was more for grace than anything else.

Mr. Rosa asked the Commission Mr. Rickard, Mr. Nowlein and Major whether he would be granted the Seward. I did business for the privilege of defending himself. A charge had been made against him and he would ask if he had a right to say something on his own behalf.

The Court retired for deliberation.

Col. Whiting then announced that

An Old Soldier's Recommendation.

In the late war I was a soldier in the First Maryland Volunteers, Company G. During my term of service I contracted chronic diarrhoea. Since then I have used a great amount of medicine, but when found any that would give me relief it would injure my stomach, until Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy was brought to my notice. I used it and will say it is the only remedy that gave me permanent relief and no bad results follow. I take pleasure in recommending this preparation to all of my old comrades, who, while giving their services to their country, contracted this dreadful disease as l did, from eating unwholesome and uncooked food.
